

CODE OF CONDUCT GUIDELINES FOR MEMBERS OF THE DEMENTIA ALLIANCE INTERNATIONAL BOARD OF DIRECTORS, DAI COMMITTEES AND VOLUNTEERS

This document outlines fundamental values and principles that define the standards of behaviour and Code of Conduct expected of DAI members, paid or unpaid staff, and volunteers of the Dementia Alliance International (DAI), the Board of Directors and any sub- committees or positions, including support group hosts.

DAI CODE OF CONDUCT

We expect that anyone who is nominated for a position on the DAI Board or on a DAI subcommittee, and subsequently accepts any of these positions, will adhere to the DAI Code of Conduct. They have been written without prejudice, to promote the best interests of the full membership of Dementia Alliance International.

It is also expected that all DAI Members will adhere to them.

We also expect that paid or unpaid staff or volunteers, including support group hosts, who have the same access to all information shared with the Board, will agree to and adhere to the DAI Code of Conduct.

Throughout this document:

The CEO, DAI Board members, DAI Executive members will be referred to as 'DAI Board member'.

DAI members of DAI sub-committees, support group hosts, volunteers and paid or unpaid DAI staff will be referred to as 'Staff'.

It is recognised that DAI is a voice of, by and for people with dementia, and as such it is the peak body and a leading advocate for matters pertaining to services, decisions, policy and research for and about people living with dementia.

We promote at all times, there be 'Nothing about us, without us'.

It is also recognised that unlike many other diseases, symptoms of dementia (whatever the cause) can affect behaviour, logical thinking, insight and memory. This in no way negates the input of any person with dementia but is cause for extra consideration to and from members of the Board, as well as considering how we as a Board, can support people experiencing these disabilities.

A person living with dementia may become unable to adhere to this code of conduct as a result of the disease. This may limit a person's contribution to the Board. This document will alleviate the need to make personal or judgemental decisions, and instead allow the board to gracefully retire a fellow board member, or indeed allow a board member who recognises their own changes to abilities to ask to be relieved of their position with no reflection on their past, nor on any alternative future contribution or work.

DAI CODE OF CONDUCT

As a consequence of their expertise in these varied areas, (including living with dementia) there may be the potential for conflicts of interest to arise between a member's duties to the board and his or her personal interests, personal health condition and ability to contribute and personal circumstances.

A conflict of interest may arise for example from:

- Other memberships or employment
- Professional and business interests and associations
- Family relationships
- Health and support needs

A DAI Board Member has a duty to declare any private interest that may impinge upon a board or committee decision.

When an issue arises, the board or committee member must as soon as practicable disclose full and accurate details of the interest or issue to the board or committee. Interests may include membership of other committees or boards advocating for people with dementia, membership of international dementia peak bodies or other memberships.

It is acknowledged that a person living with dementia may be unaware or have no insight into the impact that the disease has had upon their contribution to the Board, any committee or support group or other DAI Activity. It is then the responsibility of other Board Members to respectfully and tactfully bring this up with the individual.

One Board Member or a professional third party will be appointed to speak privately to the person whose contributions may be impacting negatively on the work of the Board, Activity, Support group or the organization as a whole.

Only specific factual examples will be used, with no intent to criticize the person or their past contribution in any way. It is expected that the person appointed to do this, will use kindness, tact and good judgement, and that the conversation should not be considered a personal criticism in any way.

If the person is happy to receive additional support to continue their role or involvement, through for example, the support of a buddy or mentor, or with disability supports specific to their needs, this must be considered; the voice of every person living with dementia is vital.

If the person is accepting and wishes to step down, the person is to be recognised in the same way as any person retiring with honour from the Board.

DAI CODE OF CONDUCT

If the person lacks insight into the negative impact of their actions or refuses to step down - every effort must be taken to support the person through this process. The Board however can take a vote to remove the person from the Board. This must be a last resort, and an amicable parting is preferred in all instances.

If a DAI member is censured for inappropriate behaviour three times (two with warnings and a subsequent third incident) their membership shall be revoked. Police involvement may be sought if the matter breaches the law.

Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has.
